

SCUGOG HONOURS VETER

Hundreds of people gathered in front of the Scugog Township municipal office fell silent on November 11, as they took time to remember young Canadian men and women who lost their lives in conflict.

After a brief ceremony at the Scugog Memorial Library, a parade of veterans (above) including members of the RCMP, cadets, fire department, police and youngsters made their way along Water, Queen and Perry Streets to the cenotaph in front of the township office.

The weather couldn't have been more perfect for this year's Remembrance Day ceremony as the names of local soldiers who lost their lives in two world wars were read aloud, followed by the laying of wreaths in honour of the fallen, by local governments, organizations, businesses and individuals at the base of the cenotaph.

The service was a fitting tribute to the thousands of soldiers who lost their lives defending this great country to preserve our freedom.

Above, Scugog veterans taking part in the Remembrance Day service in Port Perry included, back left, Jim Smitherman; front left, William Osaduke, Eric Timms and Ted Burns.

Right - Piper Cory Hubbard plays a tune during the Remembrance Day service.

ANS

Photos by J. Peter Hvidsten

Above left, Silver Cross Mother Pat Rankin lays the wreath on behalf of mothers who lost family members.

Above right, Mavis Pelletier lays a wreath for the Royal Canadian Legion Ladies Auxiliary.

Left, Inspector Andy White of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police lays a wreath on behalf of the officers of the RCMP.

Below left, Mayor-elect Chuck Mercier approaches the cenotaph to lay a wreath on behalf of the Township of Scugog.

Below, a young cadet salutes before laying a wreath for the local cadet organization.

